Men of Distinction conference planned for Oct. 30

OMAHA, Neb. — Metropolitan Community College and the North Omaha Foundation will host a conference to inspire, engage and empower young men in the 11th or 12th grade on Thursday, Oct. 30, 8 a.m.–2:30 p.m. at the Swanson Conference Center inside the Institute for the Culinary Arts, 32nd and Sorensen Parkway.

Attendees will hear from luncheon keynote speaker Robert N. Page Jr., a founder of such programs as the National Black Greek Leadership Conference and the “Am I My Brother’s Keeper” Male Empowerment Conference. With more than 25 years of experience in postsecondary education, Page will lend his positivity and passion to the audience. Attendees of the conference will also hear national and community leaders lead sessions on leadership and goal setting, healthy relationships, civility and responsibility, why you should attend college, access to scholarships and more.

Hot breakfast and lunch is included.

Students interested in attending must have a 2.0 GPA. Students may submit their registration until Friday, Oct. 17. Call 402-457-2650 or email equityanddiversity@mccneb.edu for more information.
